PROJECT OFFICER

- Stroke prevention and awareness
- Stroke services and support
- Newly created role - Sydney CBD based

Reporting to the Manager, Community Based Education, you will assist with the delivery and growth of National Stroke Foundation programs in NSW, with a focus on programs that raise awareness and educate the community about stroke prevention (warning signs and risk factors).

This role will also promote and assist with delivery of programs as required that improve clinical care (national audits and guideline implementation) and improve stroke support in the community (connecting stroke survivors with services, support and information).

You will promote and deliver education initiatives including community talks and forums, and assist with implementing National Stroke Week activities, and establish relationships with community groups and health professionals to improve the delivery and participation in other stroke related programs.

In addition to Tertiary qualifications in a health related field (e.g. health promotion, public health, nursing, allied health), you will have knowledge of the NSW health system and services, and ideally possess experience in implementing health programs, and delivering information to groups.

You have knowledge of the principles of health promotion and community engagement, a natural ability to build and maintain relationships, are highly motivated, have excellent communication and presentation skills, and highly developed organisational and time management abilities.

This permanent full-time role offers genuine opportunities to make a real and lasting difference, in a dynamic and growing organisation that is committed to saving lives, and that supports, encourages and values its people.
