

Communications Manager

Representing 129 Clubs in 11 regional branches, with over 70,000 members, Surf Life Saving NSW reaches into the community through the provision of beach patrol services, training and education, sports and junior development.

- Not For Profit
- Media and Communications focus
- Sydney Northern Beaches based.

We are currently seeking an experienced Communications Manager to oversee our small Media and Communications team. You will bring to the role excellent management and communications skills while developing effective communications to our internal and external stakeholders. Primarily you will:

- Proactively provide advice to the organisation and senior management on the effective management of issues and media;
- develop and implement the company's media and communications policy;
- build strong working relationships with key print and other media;
- engage communication and develop relationships with key government and parliamentary stakeholders on funding and support.

An understanding of Surf Lifesaving in NSW would be an advantage along with previous not for profit experience. The ideal candidate will be tertiary qualified and bring to the role exceptional written and verbal communication skills. Excellent project management, attention to detail and people management skills are essential.

The position description for this full time position based at our Narrabeen headquarters is available at www.surflifesaving.com.au. Please note that the offices of Surf Life Saving NSW will be relocating to Belrose in October.
