

- Join an organisation that is experiencing healthy growth due to an impeccable reputation in service delivery
- Make a real difference to individuals, couples and families in the Ipswich community
- Highly varied role perfect for an accomplished Counsellor, working across a diverse spectrum of programs

About the Organisation

Lifeline Community Care Queensland (LCCQ) exists to strengthen the lives of individuals, families and communities through wide-ranging community services that deliver enhanced access, efficiency and outcomes to the people who matter the most - its clients.

With more than 2000 staff and 3000 volunteers, LCCQ is currently able to assist over 371,000 Queenslanders annually through the provision of services including telephone and face-to-face counselling, disability lifestyle support, family and youth support services and childcare. Activities are funded through a combination of donations, fundraising, business income and State or Federal government service agreements.

View the organisation at <http://www.lccq.org.au>

About the Opportunity

Lifeline Community Care QLD (LCCQ) has an exciting opportunity for a full time Counsellor to join their professional and dedicated team in Ipswich.

Reporting to the Client Services Manager, the main aim of this position will be to provide professional counselling to individuals, couples and families across a range of programs.

Working as part of an innovative counselling team, your core responsibilities will include:

- Providing counselling to individuals, couples and families across a wide range of referral issues;
- Accepting self-referrals as well as referrals from Government and non-Government agencies;
- Preparing written and oral reports and statistical forms relating to client matters;
- Advocating for clients, providing relevant referrals and liaising with other agencies as appropriate; and
- Maintaining ongoing professional development and supervision.

This diverse role requires a highly skilled professional in order to deliver premium assistance to clients, and as such you will need a relevant degree (Social Work, Psychology, Counselling or Human Services), associated professional membership and counselling experience gained through previous service delivery. Your knowledge of counselling theories will be extensive.

Additionally, you will demonstrate competency in developing and facilitating networks with a variety of professionals, community agencies and government departments. You will have the ability to adhere to privacy and confidentiality legislation, maintain files and records and provide high quality written reports.

You will have a patient and empathic demeanour, with highly evolved team participation skills. LCCQ is looking for an applicant committed to personal and professional development.

No two days will be the same in this highly varied role, as you join an organisation that is experiencing healthy growth due to an impeccable reputation in service delivery.

The successful applicant will enjoy a competitive remuneration package, paid according to the LCCQ Union Collective Agreement Level 5. LCCQ also offers generous salary packaging to maximise your take home pay.

The successful candidates will enjoy numerous professional development opportunities, through training, supervision, team support, and reflective practice, while being a part of a highly reputable organisation with a national reputation for delivering premium counselling services.

This position offers an extremely high level of job satisfaction, as you are given the opportunity to make a positive difference in the community. You will be joining a progressive team, where you will receive professional supervision from an employer who wants to provide optimum working conditions.

*If you are ready for a new professional challenge, Apply Now!

For more information, and/or to apply, please click visit: <http://applynow.com.au/job18750>